

Schedule a presentation with Alia Kate, founder of Kantara, a fair trade business specializing in hand-woven Moroccan carpets as she delves into weaving in rural Morocco, and offers a glimpse into Moroccan culture, society, and politics.

Over the last six years, Alia has worked extensively in Morocco where she has had the opportunity to develop long-lasting relationships with women artisans.

Alia's interactive presentation on rural village life, the art of weaving in Morocco, and the challenges these artisans face in participating in a globalizing world is rich with personal anecdotes and set against the backdrop of Morocco's evolving political and economic history.

Alia has presented before various weaving guilds, women's groups, private parties, universities, galleries, and the Cleveland Museum of Art.
